(Moorhead, Minnesota) - Get ready to Color Your Summer! Trollwood Performing Arts School is excited to welcome students back to the stage with a full array of 2021 summer performing arts education opportunities. 2020 was a difficult year for those who are passionate about performing arts. Many classes and performances were canceled due to COVID-19. Upcoming summer arts programming will help students rekindle their affection for the arts, boost their creativity, and pave the way for their future, whether they aspire to pursue a career in the arts or any other professional opportunities.

Trollwood is pleased to offer arts education that will keep students, instructors, and their families safe. This year, middle school and high school classes will be held in a unique and reimagined format with extended blocks for various performing arts concentrations. These programs and all others, including elementary programming and numerous performance opportunities, will allow for a focused and immersive experience while reducing the potential spread of COVID-19. Trollwood will utilize the outdoors, the ample space provided at Bluestem Center for the Arts, and other locations throughout the metropolitan area, while adhering to strict health and safety guidelines. Students will connect, learn, and have fun with their friends and favorite faculty/artistic teams through the following programs:
